Saving Life at Sea

You don't have to be a Doctor or Paramedic to be presented with a person suffering a Sudden Cardiac Arrest, the world's biggest killer and when it occurs at sea it is usually a fatal event.

The cause of cardiac arrest in over 90% of cases is ventricular fibrillation, an abnormal heart rhythm, which needs the essential treatment of a defibrillator. Modern advances in technology mean that both crew and passengers with little or no training can use FRED Easy AED.

The success of defibrillation largely depends on a person suffering a cardiac arrest being within the immediate vicinity of a defibrillator, the fact that the Schiller Fred Easy can be wall mounted or carried in a waterproof case, means it is readily accessible.
